

Emmerich and Coy Chosen by CoC of Keytesville

The Keytesville Chamber of Commerce has initiated two programs to recognize those who are making contributions to the work force in Keytesville.

The first program is the Business of the Month. The July Business of the Month is Emmerich Chiropractic Clinic. Dr. Evan Emmerich is the owner of this business that has been active in Keytesville since 2008.

Emmerich graduated from Salisbury High School with the class of 2002. He attended Moberly Area Community College and then transferred to Logan University in Chesterfield, MO. He enrolled in the chiropractic program for 10 tri-semester. While in the program he worked both in a student clinic setting and on an outpatient clinical setting. Waiting for his license, Emmerich worked as a substitute teacher in the area schools. "I like Keytesville because it is centrally located for all the small towns in the area. This makes it easier for patients to come in for treatment."

Emmerich is engaged to Kelsey Roark from Salisbury. She teaches in the Westran School District and a December wedding is planned.

The Keytesville Chamber wishes to also recognize those individuals in the community who seem to go above and beyond for the town and citizens. The first Volunteer of the Quarter is Nancy Coy.

Ms. Coy has been in Keytesville since 2004. She is the treasurer for the First Baptist Church where she has taught Sunday school with the senior adults for four years. She is on the advisory Board for the Senior Center in Salisbury. She works as a cashier on Monday so she can then bring meals back to Keytesville for the seniors who may need this supplement. For 48 years Coy has been a member of Beta Sigma Phi, a sorority that encourages service to others. She is also on the Senior Housing Board in Keytesville.

"I like Keytesville because of the friendly small community atmosphere. I am sorry for every small town that is currently experiencing an economic down-turn. Keytesville has a beautiful history and I wish everyone would learn about it."

Whether it is taking a patient every to the hospital for a dialysis treatment or a medical appointment, spending time working at the public library, filling Buckets of Hope through her church activities, Nancy Coy displays a positive attitude. She feels that when she can serve others, she receives a "special reward" and encourages other to be of service.

As a side note Ms. Coy likes to attend junior high basketball games. "Sometimes those games start early and not every parent can make the games so if she is there then the team has someone to offer encouragement."

The Keytesville Chamber of Commerce meets every third Monday of the month. Currently there are 20+ paying business members. The Board of Directors encourages any and all businesses or interested persons to attend.
